6.0 Integrating stormwater management into comprehensive plans, Kate Evasic, CMAP Staff

Localized flooding is a common concern among the region's municipalities, yet many communities lack the resources to fully understand the problems they face or identify strategies to address flooding issues. In order to better integrate stormwater management into decisions about land use and development, CMAP is developing a spatial approach to identify potential flood problem and corresponding opportunity areas to address flooding using green infrastructure solutions. Evasic will provide an update on the evolving approach.
